Like Amelie, Ballerina presents a picture-postcard version of Paris – a Paris that never truly existed, but that fact should never get in the way of good storytelling. What is important is that the city feels lived in. It feels like we could step into any home, café or cathedral and a multitude of storylines would be happening within.

Besides the high quality of the animation, which is the strongest you’ll see outside of the work of Pixar and co., the film’s other main asset is Elle Fanning. Féliçie could easily come across as entitled and whiny, as she’s still finding her way; she’s young, and she makes a number of frustrating and foolish decisions on her journey to competing for a spot as a prima ballerina. But Fanning makes her very easy to like. Despite Féliçie’s single-minded approach to achieving her goal, which can cause her to hurt those around her, Fanning imbues Féliçie with the beguiling and charming qualities that Victor so obviously sees in her. When we occasionally come back to Victor’s storyline – he’s attempting to establish himself as a great inventor, despite his youth – the tale falters a little, but this is a minor issue.

Making sure that Fanning’s efforts aren’t for nothing, directors Éric Summer and Éric Warin – and their team – pay very close attention to the physicality of dance. The leaps, jumps, pirouettes, and more, are grounded in reality. Although the characters are animated in such a way that their faces are more cartoonlike than lifelike, everything about how they dance looks and feels utterly real. So, during the film’s two standout sequences – the first being Féliçie’s continued training, despite her dream having seemingly been scuppered, and the second being a dance-off between Féliçie and her main rival – the dancing becomes visceral and striking in a way that it wouldn’t if it weren’t for Summer and Warin’s passion for realising it as fully as is possible.

Tidak banyak orang yang tahu bahwa ada perusahaan animasi selain Pixar, Disney, dan Dreamworks. Hal ini karena pesaing lainnya tidak sebanding dengan ketiga perusahaan animasi besar tersebut dalam hal detail, karakter dan, yang terpenting, anggaran filmnya. Enter Gaumont dan Entertainment One bekerja sama untuk membuat kisah menarik dengan cerita yang kuat agar ditonton banyak orang seperti karya Pixar dan mitranya.

After Christopher Nolan’s Dark Knight Trilogy, and the recent DC films led by Zack Snyder, you’d be forgiven for thinking that things can’t get any more epic and bombastic. After all, Gotham and Metropolis have been threatened with bombs, invincible creatures concocted using the DNA of a super-strong alien being, more bombs, alien death rays, and much more besides. So it would take an escalation of stratospheric proportions to put either of these cities in greater peril. Cue The Lego Batman Movie, which is the most epic and bombastic of all the Batman (or Superman) movies. Right from the opening act it sets the stakes higher than ever, as LEGO Batman is forced to go up against a multitude of foes. But foiling dastardly schemes is just another day at the office for our dark knight. What’s hardest for him is what comes afterwards. Each night he returns to his vast and echoey Batcave, in his even vaster and even more echoey mansion. His only company is his butler, Alfred, who struggles to appreciate the difficulty inherent in being a multibillionaire with an ego large enough to eclipse the sun. Despite this, Alfred makes a reasonable stab at unpicking the deep melancholy that afflicts his employer, and he suggests that maybe, just maybe, Batman could do with making a few friends.

Director Chris McKay keeps the barmy, chaotic nature of the first LEGO movie, but grounds it ever so slightly by having this latest LEGO-set movie (mostly) take place in the Batman universe. (Although, as it enters its second half, it begins to borrow quite liberally from every other Warner Brothers movie under the sun.) Focusing on just one world – rather than the multitudes that we saw in The Lego Movie – does help the film’s cohesion, but the real reason The Lego Batman Movie succeeds is because of the unadulterated bravado of Will Arnett as the voice of Batman. He manages to be pompous, yet charismatic; cretinous, yet ingenious; vexing, yet heroic.

Learn more about the Joker’s latest ingenious scheme by watching the film today!
Setelah Trilogi Dark Knight karya Christopher Nolan, dan film DC yang disutradarai Zack Snyder, Anda mungkin berpikir bahwa tidak ada film lain yang lebih epik dan bombastis. Akhirnya, Gotham dan Metropolis diancam dengan bom, makhluk tak terkalahkan yang diciptakan menggunakan DNA makhluk asing super kuat, lebih banyak bom, sinar asing mematikan, dan yang lainnya. Jadi memerlukan eskalasi proporsi stratosfer untuk menghancurkan kota-kota tersebut.

Based on the beloved bestselling novel by W. Bruce Cameron, A Dog’s Purpose shares the soulful and surprising story of one devoted dog (voiced by the irrepressible Josh Gad) who finds the meaning of his own existence through the lives of the humans he teaches to laugh and love.

In his first incarnation his life is truncated, as he’s born into a litter with no owner and he’s quickly scooped up by dogcatchers. His second incarnation goes better, as he becomes the loyal friend of a young boy, Ethan (Bryce Gheisar), and does his best to bring some joy into the lives of Ethan’s parents – particularly the father (Luke Kirby), who struggles with a job he hates. From there he goes on to have many more lives and learns many more things from his owners, but it’s Ethan that is forever in our canine hero’s thoughts.

Director Lasse Hallström has some experience with animal-led films, having worked on the successful (if far too little-seen) Hachi: A Dog’s Tale. Despite only giving us a few scenes with some of Bailey’s owners – ‘Bailey’ is the first name the dog is given, and it’s the only one that matters from there on out – Hallström manages, in the quick thumbnail sketches of these brief characters, to tell (or at least suggest) enough about them that even after Bailey leaves their story you believe it’s still playing out.

The boundless optimism and good cheer of Josh Gad makes him an excellent fit for the voice of the often naïve Bailey. His observations about the oddities of human behaviour are amusing, although they cover well-worn ground. Where Gad and Hallström come into their own is during the scenes that deal with more complex and melancholy emotions. Hallström has plenty of experience dealing with the sadder moments in life (having directed The Cider House Rules, The Shipping News, What’s Eating Gilbert Grape, a couple of Nicholas Sparks’ adaptations, and more), so his handling of similar scenes here is subtle and affecting.

This one is most definitely one for dog lovers. Or even cat lovers. Or, really, anyone who likes anything fluffy.

Based on the beloved bestselling novel by W. Bruce Cameron, A Dog’s Purpose menceritakan kisah seekor anjing setia yang menggetarkan jiwa dan menakjubkan (disuarakan dengan sangat bagus oleh Josh Gad) yang menemukan jati dirinya melalui kehidupan manusia yang ia ajari untuk tersenyum dan mencintai.

Pada inkarnasi pertama, hidupnya cukup singkat, saat ia dilahirkan di atas sampah tanpa pemilik dan seketika itu juga ia diikat oleh penangkap anjing. Inkarnasi keduanya berjalan lebih baik, karena ia menjadi teman setia dari anak muda, Ethan (Bryce Gheisar), dan berusaha kera untuk menghadirkan kebahagiaan ke dalam kehidupan orang tua Ethan - terutama sang ayah (Luke Kirby), yang bergulat dengan pekerjaan yang dibenci. Sejak itu, dia menjalani lebih banyak kehidupan dan belajar tentang lebih banyak hal dari pemiliknya, tapi hanya Ethan yang selalu dipikirkan oleh pahlawan anjing kia.

Film ini sangat cocok bagi pecinta anjing. Atau bahkan pecinta kucing. Atau, siapa saja yang menyukai hewan berbulu lembut apa pun.

Director: Peter Chelsom  Stars: Gary Oldman, Asa Butterfield
Languages: English, German, French, Spanish (Latin)  Subtitles: Indonesian

The film services are available on selected flights only.

Gardner has a natural curiosity and, through some creative hacking, learns of his origins, his late mother, and the existence of a father back on Earth who he has never met. Along with a desire to meet his online love interest, Tulsa (Britt Robertson), an angst-ridden teen orphan who is under the impression he is living in New York, Gardner wants nothing more than to experience life on Earth. He manages to convince the Genesis team to medically enhance his body to be able to survive the gravity on Earth and soon makes a rendezvous with Tulsa, before the duo embark on a cross-country escape to give Gardner a chance at a normal life.

Asa Butterfield is well cast, as his wide-eyed demeanour gives a certain uncanniness to Gardner as he experiences all of the wonders of the world for the first time. Britt Robertson provides a much-needed counterpoint, with a cynical and feisty performance. The film successfully manages to blend the facets of a teen romance with the backbone of an intriguing sci-fi premise, transforming it into a hybrid greater than the sum of its parts.

Science fiction has always been fixated on the colonisation of another planet, and specifically on our nearest and thus most probable: Mars. Peter Chesholm’s The Space Between Us imagines that this feat has been realised by a joint venture between a private company, Genesis, led by visionary Nathaniel Shepherd (Gary Oldman), and NASA. However, problems arise when one of the astronauts, Sarah Elliot (Janet Montgomery), is unexpectedly found to be pregnant part way through the journey. The team back on Earth decides to keep the pregnancy under wraps, so as not to create a PR storm which would threaten the future of the Mars East Texas programme. Once the astronauts arrive at their Red Planet base, Sarah goes into labour and dies during childbirth.

The film then moves forward 16 years and we are introduced to Gardner Elliot (Asa Butterfield) who works as a scientist on the Mars colony. Gardner has a natural curiosity, and through some creative hacking he learns of his origins, his late mother, and the existence of a father back on Earth who he has never met. Along with a desire to meet his online love interest, Tulsa (Britt Robertson), a teen orphan who is under the impression he is living in New York, Gardner wants nothing more than to experience life on Earth. He manages to convince the Genesis team to medically enhance his body to be able to survive the gravity on Earth and soon makes a rendezvous with Tulsa, before the duo embark on a cross-country escape to give Gardner a chance at a normal life.

Asa Butterfield is well cast, as his wide-eyed demeanour gives a certain uncanniness to Gardner as he experiences all of the wonders of the world for the first time. Britt Robertson provides a much-needed counterpoint, with a cynical and feisty performance. The film successfully manages to blend the facets of a teen romance with the backbone of an intriguing sci-fi premise, transforming it into a hybrid greater than the sum of its parts.

*Film ini kemudian bergerak maju 16 tahun kemudian dan kita diperkenalkan dengan Gardner Elliot (Asa Butterfield) yang bekerja sebagai ilmuwan di koloni Mars. Gardner memiliki keingintahuan alami yang besar, dan melalui beberapa kali peretasan kreatif, akhirnya dia mengetahui asal-usulnya, almarhum ibunya, dan keberadaan ayahnya yang belum pernah ia temui dan telah kembali ke Bumi. Seiring dengan keinginan untuk bertemu dengan kekasihnya secara online, Tulsa (Britt Robertson), seorang anak yatim piatu yang penuh gairah dan tinggal di New York, dia tidak menginginkan apa pun selain merasakan kehidupan di Bumi. Dia berhasil meyakinkan tim Genesis dengan cara meningkatkan tubuhnya secara medis agar dapat bertahan di gravitasi Bumi dan segera bertemu dengan Tulsa, sebelum kedua-duanya memulai pelarian lintas negara untuk memberi kesempatan kehidupan normal kepada Gardner.

Asa Butterfield berperan dengan sangat baik, karena perilaku lugunya memberikan kesan aneh pada Gardner saat ia mengalami semua keajaiban dunia untuk pertama kalinya. Britt Robertson menghadirkan karakter tandingan yang sangat dibutuhkan, dengan penampilan yang sinis dan penuh semangat. Film ini berhasil memadukan aspek-aspek romantisisme masa remaja dengan kekuatan teori fiksi ilmiah yang sangat menarik, mengubahnya menjadi gabungan yang lebih hebat dibandingkan dengan sejumlah bagiannya.
THE LEGO MOVIE

Emmet, a perfectly average LEGO mini figure, is mistakenly identified as the key to saving the world. He is drafted into an epic quest, a journey for which he is hilariously underprepared.

The Unforgettable Heaven 2 (Surga Yang Tak Dirindukan 2) is a religious drama and the sequel to the box office hit The Unforgettable Heaven (2015). The movie is adapted from the novel of the same name by Asma Nadia. Continuing their lead roles from the previous film, there are: Pras (Fedi Nurill), Arini (Laudya Chintya Bella) and Meirose (Raline Shah), as well as a new character, Dr. Syarief (Reza Rahadian).

Four years after the departure of Meirose, Arini and Pras live happily with their daughter Nadia (Sandrina). Arini has become a famous professional writer and receives an invitation to promote her latest book in Budapest, Hungary. Then, one day, Arini runs into Meirose and her son Akbar. The meeting is a mixture of happiness and awkwardness; Arini learns that Meirose is moving beyond her dark past and is living a more fulfilling life. She has met a handsome young doctor, Syarief, and plans to divorce Pras officially so that both families can start anew.

However, this wonderful plan takes a turn for the worse when Arini has a serious fall. The subsequent medical reports are not encouraging. Knowing her days are numbered, Arini tries to persuade Meirose to return to Pras. Unsurprisingly, Meirose has serious doubts about this. She struggles between a man who offers her a future, Syarief, and the man who once saved her, Pras. She wrestles with the two options, far from sure about what to do.

Compared to the first film, The Unforgettable Heaven 2 (Surga Yang Tak Dirindukan 2) is much calmer and more tranquil. That said, it doesn’t lack for shocks and surprises, but the main characters have matured and grown, and they keep their (previously) bursting impulsive emotions in check. The film is also noticeably slower than the first, allowing the camera to take more time in catching the changing expressions (which are sometimes fleeting) in the faces of the leads, and giving them more room to build their characters.

It’s a compelling film which explores a number of interesting topics, with a focus on redefining relationships, friendships and the nature of family. Catch it on board today!
Surga Yang Tak Dirindukan 2 adalah sebuah drama religius dan sekuel dari film terlaris Surga Yang Tak Dirindukan (2015). Film ini diadaptasi dari novel dengan judul yang sama karya Asma Nadia. Menampilkan pemeran utama dari film sebelumnya: Pras (Fedi Nuril), Arini (Laudya Chintya Bella), dan Meirose (Raline Shah), dan tokoh baru, Dr. Syarief (Reza Rahadian).

Dibandingkan dengan film pertama, Surga Yang Tak Dirindukan 2 jauh lebih tenang. Meski demikian, film ini tetap menyuguhkan beberapa kejutan dan kehebohan, tapi para karakter utama telah menjadi lebih matang dan dewasa, dan mereka menjaga emosi mereka yang (tadinya) meledak-ledak. Film ini juga terasa lebih lambat dari yang pertama, sehingga kamera memiliki lebih banyak waktu untuk menangkap perubahan ekspresi (yang kadang singkat) di wajah pemeran utama, dan memberi mereka lebih banyak ruang untuk membangun karakternya.

Film ini sangat menarik yang membahas sejumlah topik menarik, dengan fokus pada makna hubungan, persahabatan, dan sifat keluarga. Tonton sekarang juga!

Do you like authentic and great-tasting food, beautiful and breathtaking underwater locations, and striking and rarely seen animals? Then follow Mahendro Wisnu and embark on a journey of exploration through Tepi Barat Papua.

We start off on a modern ‘sea hotel’ vessel and get a glimpse of the specially prepared (by the on-board chef) local food – and we reach Papua in no time. This is Indonesia’s eastern-most province and an area of cultural and biological diversity. A multitude of different marine animals swim amid the coral gardens of Cenderawasih Bay National Park, a dive site off the north coast. As we descend into the blue-green water, finding ourselves surrounded by shoals of colourful fish, it becomes clear why so many people love diving, and some of the best dive sites are located here, at Selat Sagawin, Papua Barat. The island is liberally peppered with rainforests and mountains, and is inhabited by indigenous Melanesian tribes. They have inherited many traditions which they still practise today, such as ritual perayaan Paskah at Kampung Deer, Kofiau. At night, people light torches, singing and dancing along the way. Diverse wildlife shares this land with these tribes, including tree kangaroos and birds of paradise. There are hundreds of species of birds in total, some of which are endemic and declining in number. Shooting a photo of these birds takes tremendous patience, endurance and luck.

See all of this, and more, by catching this programme on board today.

With unprecedented access, this documentary follows Mo Farah – perhaps the greatest living British Olympian – as he trains to take on the double once again: running the 5,000 m and 10,000 m on the track at the Rio Olympics. The documentary explores the staggering amount of training he has to put in, delves into the issue of performance-enhancing drugs in competitive sport, and asks just how much Mo has to sacrifice to achieve his dreams.

Filming began in January 2016, eight months before the Olympics. To get a gauge of the shape he is in, Mo competed in the World Cross-Country Championships in Edinburgh and finished a strong second. But, of course, Mo is unable to keep from chastising himself for falling just short of first place. To snatch gold at the Olympics you have to give absolutely everything – which can’t help but sound like a truism, but it is, quite simply, absolutely true – so his next port of call is Ethiopia, where he spends six weeks running 20 miles a day at an altitude of 10,000 feet in temperatures exceeding 30 degrees.

It’s apparent from his training sessions just what makes the difference between coming first in a race and coming second. If his trainer tells him to run a -60 second lap, he’ll run a -59 second lap. If his training partners are gaining, then he has to start pulling away, regardless of how exhausted he is. It’s a mindset that you’re either born with or you’re not. It’s not something which you can have instilled in you. Giving your all, and then giving some more, and then digging even deeper, isn’t something that just anyone can do.

The documentary (and Mo) next heads to Oregon, USA, where Mo has settled with his family because he wants to get involved with one of the top training programmes in the world: The Oregon Project. It’s here that the film-makers look into why the Project has had such success, and attempt to get to grips with what it’s like to walk the line between what is and isn’t permissible in elite-level racing.

The five-member South Korean K-pop idol group return with their third Korean studio album, Good Timing. They also, unusually, have released three Japanese studio albums which have all done well, and they regularly tour abroad, having built up a following in the US, the Middle East, and elsewhere. Which is a long-winded way of saying: now is as good a time as any to catch-up with their bouncy, pop-y, hyper-energised stylings.

Their latest album strays further from K-pop then you might imagine, which is to the band’s credit, as it would be easy for them to continue producing the same sounds that brought them to prominence in the first place. The album opener, ‘A Lie’, has a slow, hypnotic groove to it, and features Jinyoung.
on the vocals, with Sandeul using his falsetto to give key moments more heft. It’s a strong opening track, and the band released it as the album’s first single. The title track, ‘Good Timing’, is more dance driven, with its catchy hooks and a chorus you want to sing along to – also, it’s capped with an excellent guitar solo which sees the band embrace rock wholeheartedly. A few tracks later comes ‘Sparkling’, which is much more playful; it lightly skips along with such joy and naivety that you get the impression it was written to nostalgically throw you back in time to your first school disco. ‘Melancholy’ starts out with a thumping electronica beat, only to quickly change tack and offer up a more a-typical K-pop track, which, although a good addition to the album, might have been more interesting if it kept with the more unusual sound suggested by the first 30 seconds of the track.

This album gives every member of the band a chance to shine, and not just in terms of the literal amount of time each of them gets to sing on the album, but because each band member has a song that they wrote, composed and arranged – although Jinyoung has a hand in practically every song. Catch the band’s latest, on board today!
